

POSTSCRIPT

Twenty-three years after his operation performed by Major William R. Pitts of Charlotte, Richard Tregaskis was still covering the wars. In a letter written in Honolulu on October 31, 1966, in reply to a request for permission to quote passages from Invasion Diary, Mr. Tregaskis granted permission and expressed his delight that the history of the 38th Evacuation Hospital unit was to be published.

"It was a fine outfit and their innumerable good works deserve all possible notice," Mr. Tregaskis wrote.

"You certainly are welcome to quote what you need from Invasion Diary. Among many other Americans, I owe at least my life to the 38th Evac.

"I say 'at least my life' because Bill Pitts did such a good job with my bit of neuro-surgery that I've been able to go on walking, talking and writing just about as before.

"There were some residual effects, it is true, but I was able to go back to the wars as correspondent, first for International News Service and then the Saturday Evening Post.

"I went to the Normandy Beachhead, then across France, Belgium, Holland, and into Germany with the First Army, then back to the Pacific to fly with the B-29's and a torpedo squadron from the USS Ticonderoga making bombing strikes into Japan. When the war ended I went into Japan with the Military Government, to write about them.

"Subsequently, I was involved as a correspondent in many of the small wars which broke out at the conclusion of the WW II hostilities. This Leninistic Cycle started right after World War II and still confronts us in Vietnam and elsewhere.

"I was involved as a Correspondent in China, Indo-China, Malaya, Indonesia, Korea, the Formosa Straits and most recently, in Vietnam.

"I also found time to be involved in writing screenplays and teleplays, mostly concerned with these wars. In case you have been watching the TV late shows, I should point out I had author's credit for Guadalcanal Diary, Force of Arms, Mission Over Korea, Wild Blue Yonder, and Fair Wind to Java. I also wrote scripts for the television series called Winston Churchill, Flight, Steve Canyon and Blue Angels. And I've had a series of books too—most of them the eye-witness, non-fiction kind: Seven Leagues to Paradise, X-15 Diary, John F. Kennedy and PT-109; two novels, Stronger Than Fear and Last Plane to Shanghai; most recently Vietnam

Captain John S. Anderson, of Wadena, Minnesota, a Green Beret officer, at Dak To, a Special Forces outpost in the mountains of South Vietnam near the Laotian border. Richard Tregaskis at right. Note camp in background.

Diary. Because of Vietnam Diary, I was awarded the CBS George Polk Award for hazardous reporting in 1964.

"For the last couple of years I've been working on my third novel, China Bomb. It has to do with the Asian war situation, and in the course of research for the book my wife and I travelled as far as Ladakh, on India's Northwest Frontier with China. At the time of China's detonation of the first A-bomb in 1964, we were as close to their nuclear testing ground in Sinkiang as you could be without actually being in China.

"That was up in the Indian Karakoram, a collection of horrific mountains, the roof of the world. In the course of that trip, and amidst those very primitive Tibetan surroundings, I injured a foot in a riding accident and nearly lost it to gangrene.

"But the doc saved the extremity, I've managed to finish the book and it is scheduled for publication next year."
