235 South Tryon Street
(REMEMBER THAT ADDRESS)

Known at the Defense Recreation Office, it's a:

1. Soldier's Information headquarters.
2. Homes Hospitality headquarters.
3. Charlotte's Famous Victory Belle's headquarters.

If you want free lodging in a private home; if you want to dance; if you want information; or if you just want fun—GO TO 235 S. Tryon St.

Jewish Men's Club

107½ E. MOREHEAD ST.

A fine recreation center open to all service men. Ping pong and pool tables together with other games combined with lounge and writing facilities, make this Club attractive when visiting Charlotte.

☆ You'll like your stay in Charlotte, whether it's for overnight, a week-end, or several months, soldier, if the Victory Belles have their way about it. ☆ They're here to entertain you, and that's their main idea after hours. Some of them work, some of them go to college, some of them stay at home. But they're all out for entertaining men in uniform, and that's you. ☆ They can shake a leg at jitterbugging, or they can follow you over a smooth floor while the orchestra strums out a waltz. ☆ They can tap and kick and learn skits for a revue given for you and for your unfortunate buddies who happen to be prisoners of the enemy at the moment. ☆ They can do more than that. They help entertain you even when you aren't in Charlotte by selling tags for the USO, which reaches you almost anywhere. ☆ They greet your paratroopers and stand beside your friends while they take their Navy oath of allegiance. They give fashion shows and sell War Bonds and Stamps so you'll have the material you need to fight. ☆ You'll find one to fit any one of you. Tall, short, medium, thin, plump, blue-eyed, green-eyed, brown-eyed, blondes, brunettes, redheads, some who like to sit and talk, some who like only to dance, some who like to take you to church on Sunday after the Saturday night weekly dance, some who prefer checkers and chess or ping-pong at the Enlisted Men's Club. ☆ But, whatever they like to do, they like to do it with you, soldier. ☆ They can't miss. And neither can you, once you've met and frolicked with the Belles. It's practically a guaranteed fact that you'll come back again and again to ring their bell.

That's Charlotte's VICTORY BELLES

"Hornet's Nest"

When Lord Cornwallis occupied Charlotte on September 26, 1780, after the Battle of Charlotte, he referred to it as a hornet's nest since his soldiers could have no rest. He withdrew on October 12 and Charlotte has been known as the "Hornet's Nest" until today.

The City has honored its service men since the days of Cornwallis. The marker below which lists the names of the Service Men of the present war is located in front of the Mecklenburg County Courthouse at 700 E. Trade St.

Salvation Army Soldier's Center

Traveler's Aid Soldier's Center

When arriving or leaving Charlotte by train from the Southern Depot, you will find the Soldier's Center illustrated above available for your comfort.

A Traveler's Aid attendant will be on duty at all times both at the Southern Depot and at the Union Bus Terminal. Service to soldiers and soldiers' families is their principal wartime objective.

Salvation Army Soldier's Center

Recreational and sleeping facilities are provided at the Salvation Army Headquarters at 309 N. Poplar St.

Famous during the first war for its services to soldiers, the Charlotte Army is carrying forth with a greater program today.

Their feature in Charlotte is coffee and doughnuts.
